

FCC

08-May-2017

I am writing to offer my support for the subject of "Net Neutrality".

As a consumer of "Internet" (broadband), for both professional and personal consumption, I would like to continue to enjoy an unrestricted, unadulterated service, much like a utility and NOT in the form of a "subscription service".

I strongly believe that the continuance of "Net Neutrality" will foster academic growth and overcome the significant "digital divide" that is all too prevalent today.

Taking steps to reduce, remove, or even impact "Net Neutrality", will enable a broadband enterprise (Comast, CenturyLink, or others) to promote their agendas and products, and eliminate the "freedom of choice" we enjoy as consumers of the myriad of products that are only available with the advent of reliable, scalable broadband.

I do appreciate that an organization with the charter of the FCC works to ensure the best options for a population that does not always understand the ramifications of the very demands they might make and am confident that the FCC will not be influenced by any presumed alteration in the quality of and continued expansion of broadband services that might be expressed if "Net Neutrality" were allowed to continue.

Please accept my support and appreciation for the continued efforts of the FCC to offer objective guidance for these complex, highly technical matters.

Thank you for your consideration.

William Jastrow
bill.jastrow@gmail.com